MULTIPURPOSE SPACE

Dual-purpose design

Creating multifunctional spaces that can double up to perform numerous roles is a smart way to squeeze the most out of the space your home offers. This black box extension (left) by MATA Architects (www.mata-architects.co.uk) was conceived as a home office and guest bedroom. A bespoke folding wall has been used in this scheme (above) by HUTCH Design (www.hutchdesign.co) to connect the home office/third bedroom and the main living area.

HOME OFFICE

Work from home

Flooding your home office with natural light is a smart way to establish an energising space that's conducive to good work. This home office (right), by Cousins & Cousins (www.cousinsandcousins.com), is bathed in sunshine thanks to a picture window, rooflight and internal glazing that opens out into the two-storey glazed extension.
